Introduction: The incidence of isolated lower extremity injuries requiring prolonged immobilization is rising. Although this event is associated with a risk of venous thromboembolism (VTE), the optimal thromboprophylactic strategy is not known. The ongoing FONDACAST trial was designed to determine the benefit of a well defined regimen of fondaparinux, a synthetic selective factor Xa inhibitor, in patients immobilized with a cast or brace for an isolated below-knee injury.

Methods: FONDACAST is an international, open-label, randomized study in a planned total of 1350 patients aged  $\geq 18$  years, requiring rigid or semi-rigid immobilization (i.e. cast or brace) for at least 21 days and up to 45 days for an isolated non-surgical below-knee injury and presenting with at least one additional major risk factor for VTE. After randomization, all eligible subjects receive subcutaneously once daily either fondaparinux 2.5 mg (1.5 mg in patients with creatinine clearance between 30 and 50 mL/min) or nadroparin 2850 anti-Xa IU (0.3 mL) for at least 21 days, up to complete mobilization, corresponding to cast or brace removal. The maximal duration of treatment is 45 days. The primary endpoint is the composite of VTE and death up to complete mobilization, corresponding to cast or brace removal. The main safety endpoints are major bleeding and non-major clinically relevant bleeding. All these endpoints will be adjudicated by an independent central adjudication committee.

Results: The study started in 2008 and results will be available in 2010. Conclusions: The FONDACAST study will demonstrate whether fondaparinux is superior to nadroparin in preventing VTE or death in patients with a below-knee cast or brace.

The efficacy of manual lymph-drainage combined with compression bandaging and therapeutic exercises in patients with postthrombotic syndrome

Klare MOG

Lymphology, Seeklinik Zechlin, Dorf Zechlin, Germany

In the Seeklinik Zechlin / Germany there are treated 1100 patients with edemas every year. 10% of them are patients with edemas as a result of postthrombotic syndrome of the legs. The success of the treatment depends on the severity of the edema and the degree of fibrosis. The treatment of choice is a combination of complete decongestive therapy, manual lymph-drainage, compression bandaging and the special exercises under the bandage. The purpose of our study is to determine if complex lymphedema therapy is effective in decreasing disease severity and improving quality of life in patients with post-thrombotic syndrome.

We treated 109 patients with edema of the lower limbs and post-thrombotic syndrome over 1 year. 10 patients had a combined thrombophilic disorder. The volume was measured with the perometer- test. All patients got manual lymph-drainage and compression bandaging twice daily and daily special exercises. The reduction of the volume was statistically calculated.

The complex lymphedema therapy led to a significant reduction of the edema in 109 patients with postthrombotic syndrome. The reduction of the edema depends on the duration of stay and on the volume of the legs. The bigger the volume of the legs the bigger the reduction of it.

Conclusion: Manual lymphdrainage twice daily, bandaging and special exercises are suggestive procedures in the treatment of edema in patients suffering from postthrombotic syndrome. Complex lymphedema therapy is effective in decreasing disease severity. The treatment improves the quality of life in patients with postthrombotic syndrome.

Mechanisms of forming of the hemostasiopathy under long professional and ecological influence among patients with atherosclerosis

Kruchynsky NG and Teplyakov A

Anti-Doping Department, National Anti-Doping Agency, Minsk, Belarus

We have for 15 years observed 577 patients with cardiovascular and cerebrovascular pathology (426 persons belong to different categories of the population damaged by Chernobyl catastrophe, and 151 - medical personnel, professionally contacting with the sources of ionizing radiations). Diagnosis was verified on the grounds of modern ultrasonic methods of the diagnostics and made us to come to conclusion that there is a need to develop and introduce an interdisciplinary approach to understand and solve the problem on the grounds of modern biology, biophysics and clinical medicine.

The result of our study was an analysis of the mechanisms of cellular-humoral regulation of haemostasis system and blood rheology among observed groups of patients with different variants of ischemic heart disease (IHD) and ischemic brain disease (IBD).

The condition of the haemostasis system was valued by means of 24 parameters describing all its components. Characteristics of blood rheology were studied by means of rotary viscometer in broad range of the velocities of the shift (10 to 300 s<sup>-1</sup>) with the following calculation of erythrocytes structured-functional parameters.

Our study has shown that among the patients.

- whose main arteries are damaged by system atherosclerosis with prevalence of the clinical manifestations on the part of the main target organs.

- suffering from cardiovascular and cerebrovascular pathology.

- and being under long low-level ionizing radiation influence.

it is possible to point out the following mechanisms of the formation of haemostasis breaches:

- raise of thrombotic danger, which manifest itself with activation and increased platelets sensitivity to broad spectrum of inductors.

- deterioration of rheologic blood parameters, conditioned mainly by the structural-functional changes in erythrocytes.

Aforesaid changes are most expressed among patients constantly living on ionizing radiation contaminated territory. The liquidators of the consequences on Chernobyl catastrophe differ from group of permanently living on Chernobyl-affected territories, and from "professionals" by more significant breaches in 3rd phase of blood clotting and reduced anticoagulant potential that can be regarded as the lack of compensatory reactions on the part of vascular wall.

Background: Myocardial infarction (MI), Stroke, Prosthetic heart valves (PHV)(aortic valve replacement-AVR and mitral valve replacement-MVR) and Coronary artery bypass grafting (CABG) are artery thrombosis (AT) - associated with high morbidity and mortality.

Aim: To show percent of female with AT which are protected with Oral Anticoagulant Therapy (OAT).

Methods: A retrospective study according to the data from electronic information system in Department of out-patients in Institute for Transfuzion Medicine (ITM) in Skopje – Republic of Macedonia.

Results: The total number of patients with AT was 645 from which 240 (37,2%) were female and 405 (62,8%) were male. Others results a represented in the table bellow.

Table: Analysis of female with arterial thrombosis by diagnosis and age

AGES	21–30	31–40	41–50	51–60	61–70	TOTAL
MI	3	21	19	8	3	54 (23%)
STROKE	6	33	27	15	4	85 (35%)
PHV-MVR	1	10	14	57	4	86 (36%)
PHV-AVR	2	3	2	3	0	10 (4%)
CABG	0	3	1	0	1	5 (2%)
TOTAL	12	70	63	83	12	240

Discussion: From analysed 240 female with AT most frequently 23,7% from total number with AT were with MVR and between 51–60 years.

The second place were female age between 31–40 years with Stroke-14% from total number female with AT.

With MI were 21 from all female and between ages 31–40 years.

Patients treated with oral anticoagulant therapy and dental extraction

haemostasis and thrombosis; <sup>4</sup>Department of out-patients, Institute of transfusion medicine, Skopje, Republic of Macedonia

The patients treated with oral Vitamin K antagonist, acenocoumarol, are in the risk group for dental extraction. A decision has to be made whether to continue or interrupt the acenocoumarol; the problem arises of balancing the thromboembolic risk with the bleeding risk.

Aim: The management of single and multiple dental extractions in patients on an acenocoumarol.

Methods: According the diagnosis 33 patients were divided into two groups 1) 25 with atrial fibrillation (AF); 2) 8 with prosthetic mechanical heart valves (PMHV). International normalized ratio (INR) was performed in ITM and was measured with TRINITY-Bio-pool, ISI - 1,04.

All patients were in the risk group according: the diagnosis, the age, the anesthesia used, the uniqueness of the dental injury and the environment of the oral cavity.

Results: We describe data of 33 patients (21 males and 12 females), with a median age of 64 years undergoing dental extraction. We interrupt the acenocoumarol one or two days before the extraction in all of them till INR 2.0 to 2.4 (test the same day of extraction). The therapy was continued the next day; the patients with PMHV were treated with LMWH (Clexane) and then after extraction overlap 4–5 days with an acenocoumarol. Noone had prolonged bleeding from the sockets. Noone had thromboembolic event.

Conclusion: Dental treatment on patients with oral Vitamin K antagonist, acenocoumarol, is controversial; physicians have to weigh the risks of hemorrhage against the risks of emboli from interruption of the treatment. Some recommendation are: (i) no change INR of 2.0
